BRITISH LORDS PLEAD FOR TERMS TO END STRIFE

Jealousy Among Balkan States
Balked British Policy,
Says Lansdowne

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless]
LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—The first expression of a sentiment for peace among members of parliament was made yesterday in the House of Lords when in the course of a debate Baron Courtney asked if there was not some way in which the strife could be ended.

Baron Loreburn had just spoken, saying that he had been informed two months ago that 15,000,000 men had been killed or permanently disabled in the war.

"Since that time," the baron said, "there have been multitudes killed or permanently disabled, and there is no telling how vast the toll will be in the months to come when the casualty lists are bound to grow larger and larger."

Any Alternative Good
Enough for Courtney.

Then Baron Courtney took the floor and said:

"Is there no alternative to this unparalleled strife? If there is, surely we should show ourselves ready to accept any suggestions offered looking to the ending of it."

Subsequently, Marquis Lansdowne spoke and many interpreted his speech as a defense of the government in reply to Baron Loreburn.

The marquis said Great Britain had founded her Balkan policy upon the hope that the Balkan states would be ready to enter the war on the policy of give and take, but old jealousies and animosities developed arguments among them with the result that Britain was blocked in her plans.

BRITISH MINERS NOT WANTED IN ARMY
LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—So many miners have enlisted that the coal supply has been seriously affected and hereafter miners who desire to enlist will be accepted only on condition that they continue to work until called to the colors.

These facts were made public yesterday when the government informed leaders of the miners to this effect.

POISON FIENDS ATTEMPT TO KILL ALLIES' HORSES

Conspirators In West States
Force Agents to Change
Base of Supplies

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless]
PITTSBURGH, Pa., Nov. 9.—Following the alleged attempt to poison horses bought throughout the West and Middle West by agents of the Allies, these agents have discontinued assembling horses in those districts and have selected Pittsburgh as the distributing center for the future. Ten thousand horses destined for the battlefronts in Europe are now stabled in Pittsburgh and will be shipped to New York for transportation over the ocean, as rapidly as accommodation can be obtained.

IN WAR ARENA

TEUTON FORCE OCCUPIES
SERB TOWN NEAR NISH

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—One of the largest towns in Serbia fell yesterday before the Teutonic invasion. Worn out by the terrific pounding of the enemy the Serbs early yesterday morning evacuated Krusevac, 30 miles northwest of Nish, on a branch of the Norava river, and the Teutons completed their crossing of the stream and occupied the stronghold.

Gen. von Gallwitz, commander of the victorious army, is reported to have taken many prisoners. They were chiefly rear-guard detachments resisting the entry of the Teutons.

The enemy is reported to have met a vigorous opposition to the end and to have lost heavily in completing occupation of the place.

SLAVS HARASS TEUTONS TO FORCE RETIREMENT
LONDON, Eng., November 9.—The Russian offensives are continuing activity being reported from Courland, Volhynia and Galicia. It is reported the Russians are not attempting to make progress, but instead are harassing the enemy constantly with a view to preventing them from preparing winter positions. Their inability to do so eventually would compel a retirement all along the line, and it is thought the Russians are counting on this.

TEUTON SUBMARINES SINK THREE MORE STEAMERS

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—Submarine activities were suddenly resumed yesterday by both the Teutons and Allies in three seas. Following closely the announcement that Germany had abandoned its submarine blockade of the British Isles, reports of the sinking of three ships in the North Sea were received yesterday.

The victims are the British steamers Buresk and Geymoor and the Danish steamer Birgit. The crews of the British steamers are reported to have been saved and the crew of the Danish steamer to have been landed. It is now reported that the Yasa-kuni Maru, which was sunk in the Eastern Mediterranean, near the Strait of Gibraltar, was being used to transport supplies to Saloniki. The ship had been chartered by the British government.

PLOT TO OVERTHROW KHEIDIVE FRUSTRATED.

BERLIN, Germany, Nov. 9.—A conspiracy to overthrow the British government in Egypt has been discovered and foiled, according to a report given out here yesterday by the Overseas News Agency. The report comes from Constantinople and says the conspiracy was reported there from Cairo.

Forty members of the court were implicated, Constantinople says. Their aim was to overthrow the new sultan and his ministry and set up a new government of natives. The plot was discovered before it had progressed far, however, and the 40 members of the court were arrested.

After trials 25 were found guilty and sentenced to die. They have already been executed, it is stated. What fate the other 15 met at the hands of the court is not mentioned.

BRITAIN'S POSITION WARNS U. S. FOR PREPAREDNESS

LONDON, Eng., Nov. 9.—Commenting on the American national defense program as it affects expansion of the navy, the Daily Telegraph says today that the United States has been convinced of its need of a large navy by the accomplishments of the British navy in the war.

"The United States no doubt appreciates so accurately the value of supremacy of the seas in time of war," says the Telegraph, "that it is unwilling to wait for peace and thus derive lessons that are bound to come on construction and armament."

TOKIO, Nov. 8.—When the word was received in this city that Mrs. Galt would be the next mistress of the White House, the citizens of this city were overjoyed, as Dr. Rudolph Teusler, who has been president of the Central Hospital in Tokio for many years, is a cousin of President Wilson's fiancée. Dr. Teusler has always been a favorite among the Japanese, and has been one of the big figures in the life of Japan. Dr. Teusler has done more to cement the feeling of friendship between the Japanese and the Americans than any other man.

SMALLER SUGAR CROP FOR 1916 IS PROPHESED

Willett & Gray Foresee Likelihood of 1,300,000 Tons
Less Than in 1914

Predictions that the 1916 world's sugar crop, beet and cane sugars included, will be 1,378,000 tons less than the total 1914 production, are found in the following article quoted from Willett & Gray's issue of October 21:

"It has been a custom of ours during the month of October to issue our 'Crops of the World' table, including what are called at present 'estimates' of the new crops for the season 1915-16. From our experience, we are fully aware that making estimates at this early date, when there are two or three months of growing weather still before us and which can have a material effect on the final result, is uncertain, and we again publish our table of the crops of the world this week subject to the usual reservation that at this early date these figures cannot be taken on any other basis than that they are an indication of the final outcome."

"That these indications of crops are a valuable aid to figure the expected sources of supply is shown by our indication of the size of the Cuba crop now just about ending. On October 22nd, 1914, we stated that from information that we had in hand at that time, the Cuba crop just ending now indicated a crop of 2,600,000 tons. Although we were subjected to criticism in maintaining this figure as the size of the crop, we desire to call attention to the fact that the final outcome of the 1914-15 Cuba crop was in almost exactly the figure that we indicated one year ago. During the harvesting of this crop estimates of this crop were made 200,000 to 250,000 tons below our figure and some people in the sugar trade were strongly of the opinion that the crop could not outturn more than 2,250,000 tons.

Larger Cuban Acreage.

"Regarding Cuba, especially, we have received our usual good proportion of replies to the inquiries sent out by us, and in practically every instance the replies show an increase in acreage planted. Furthermore the weather has been exceptionally favorable during the entire crop year, with the exception of the central part of the island (in parts of Santa Clara and Camaguey), where, during the summer, the weather was too dry. Elsewhere, however, rainfall was ample and well distributed, and almost generally in the replies which we have received from the Cuban factories, they state that the cane is much better than last year. Furthermore, the occurrence of two hurricanes in the vicinity of Cuba had the tendency to cause an ample rainfall throughout the greater part of the island, the center of the hurricanes being sufficiently distant from the island to prevent any damage from heavy winds. Based on these reports, there is sufficient cane to make a crop of 3,000,000 tons, which is approximately an increase of about 500,000 tons from last year. While, from these reports we would be justified in giving Cuba an indication of 3,000,000 tons as the size of the next crop, we prefer to indicate a crop of 3,000,000 tons.

"The other cane crops of the world all show slight increases, except Mexico, where unsettled political conditions have interfered with the crop very seriously; Argentina, where a remarkable frost reduced an expected crop of over 200,000 tons to 175,000 tons, and Australia and Mauritius, where severe drought during the growing season seriously affected the size of these crops.

"We speak of our estimate of European and domestic beet crop elsewhere. The total supply of cane possible during 1915-16 is estimated at 10,291,000 tons; the European beet crop at 5,780,000 tons and the United States beet crop at 750,000 tons and the Canadian beet crop at 16,000 tons, making a grand total of cane and beet sugar for the world 16,837,000 tons against last year of 18,215,022 tons.

FEDERAL COURT HEARS EXCHANGE OF 'AMENITIES'

McCarn Takes Opposing Counsel's Remarks to Heart;
Jury Frees Accused

Federal court circles are still abuzz over an incident last Friday in which District Attorney Jeff McCarn, Attorney Lorin Andrews and Judge Dole figured. It was just before the jury in the Mendola case went out and the district attorney made an address to the jury in the course of which he made some picturesque remarks which in the courtroom were believed to refer to Attorney Andrews.

During his argument, Attorney Andrews had taken occasion to classify criminals, saying that those who assaulted women or their fellow men were of the "vicious" class. He also made a brief reference to the class to which "run-toters" belonged. He added that his client, Mendola, was not a member of the "vicious" class, and should not be referred to as such. His idea was to distinguish between moral crimes and crimes of violence.

In closing, McCarn, in substance, declared that Andrews was trying to "assassinate the character" of the two Japanese boys who were witnesses for the government. He remarked that a person who would "put his foot" on the necks of the Japanese boys, and attempt to assassinate character, should not be allowed to practise law. Judge Dole's attention was called to the district attorney's flow of language, and he called order at once, stating that if Attorney Andrews had said anything out of the way he should apologize and that if McCarn's attack were uncalled for it would be up to the district attorney to make the apology.

The district attorney may make an apology to the court but I want no apology from Mr. McCarn," retorted Andrews.

He repeated in substance what he said and the court found nothing amiss in it. The district attorney is related to have said in substance that if Mr. Andrews meant nothing by his remarks he would withdraw his own references as made to the jury.

The jury retired and returned with an acquittal of Mendola.

READY TO MOVE SUBMARINES IN COUPLE OF DAYS

Wednesday morning is expected to see the last of the stores and equipment belonging to the third submarine division moved to the new base at Pearl Harbor. The first instalment has already been taken over, the second went today and the final lot will be towed there Wednesday.

"We are making preparations to leave maybe tomorrow and maybe next day," said Lieut. Joseph V. Ogan, commander of the K boats. "We are moving our supplies and stores down to Pearl Harbor, to make our general base and storehouse there instead of here. That is all there is to it."

Although the Alert will be stationed at Pearl Harbor, the submarines will be seen here almost as often as before.

On Monday the K-4 and K-7 made short runs, the K-4 submerging part of the time and the K-7 staying on the surface. Torpedo target practice will begin next week, the men firing first at a stationary range, and later this month at a moving target representing a ship.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 8.—Masu Takase, Matsuo Ito and Mayo Koike, three of the cherry dancers who were in the production at the exposition, will leave this city on the Nippon Maru for Japan. The trio have been having arguments with Manager Yosuda of the cherry dancers, and decided that they would discontinue their work with the organization.

JAPAN COURT IS LAST SCENE IN CASE OF EILLS

Little Olga Awarded to Mother
After Fight of Several Years

Probably the closing chapter in the noted Ellis case in Japan, in which Honoluluan was at one time interested, has been written. Little Olga Ellis, taken from Massachusetts to Tokio by her father, John Ellis, a clergyman and teacher, has been awarded to the mother, Harriet C. Ellis, after a fight of years.

The Japan Advertiser of recent date tells of the last court hearing on the case as follows:

"The last hearing of the case in which Mrs. Harriet Ellis is suing her husband, John Ellis, for the custody of their daughter, Olga, was held in the Tokio district court yesterday morning. Judge Kawabe presiding. The judgment will be given October 20."

"Both attorneys made their final statements, still arguing as to the legality of the ruling of an American court as applying to the case in Japan. Mrs. Ellis' attorney has produced as evidence decrees from the probate court of Chicopee, Mass., handed down in April, 1912, and another decree from the superior court, in the same state, giving the custody of the child to her mother. Mr. Ellis' lawyer attempted to get four documents relating to some of the earlier stages of the case accepted as evidence, but on the protest of the attorney for the plaintiff they were not accepted.

"Persons closely connected with the case say that the judgment is as likely to be given for one party as for the other. There are conflicting laws on the state books of Japan that both apply to this case. The suit will be decided on purely technical, legal grounds as the hearings have never been given over to the question of which parent is best qualified to rear the little girl."

The Ellis case has attracted considerable interest in Tokio. The attempt of Mrs. Ellis to obtain the custody of her daughter began several years ago in Massachusetts. After long legal controversy in that state Mrs. Ellis was granted the custody of the child, but before the decree could be enforced Mr. Ellis left the United States with his daughter and went to Japan, where he obtained a position as teacher in English in the Tokio higher commercial school. An attempt to obtain the extradition of Mr. Ellis nearly three years ago failed. During the extradition proceedings Olga Ellis was placed in charge of Baron N. Kanda.

Mrs. Ellis then decided to go to Japan. Several months ago she began proceedings in the Japanese courts to gain the custody of her child, offering the Massachusetts decree in evidence of her right.

Hawaii became interested in the case when the mother began a search for her child, several Honoluluan being asked to aid. It was thought that the little girl had been brought here on a Matson liner, but she and her father were later found in Japan.

CHIHUAHUA MOB BURNS AND LOOTS MANY BUILDINGS

Villa's Troops Lead Rioters
and German Consulate
Is Ransacked

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless]
SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Nov. 9.—A mob composed of Villistas, civilians and women of Chihuahua, has made a destructive raid there, burning and looting several buildings, according to a statement given out by the Carranza consul here yesterday. One of the buildings raided was the German consulate.

The consulate was the first building attacked. The consul made vigorous protests, but they were not heeded and the consulate was ransacked, but not burned. Then the mob raided the market house and after looting it of all supplies applied the torch and destroyed it. The confiscation agency then was visited and looted.

Following this the Villa commanders levied a tax on merchants amounting to $100,000 in Mexican gold. The money was desired, the commanders said, to pay the soldiers. The rioting, the commanders said, was induced by their failure to pay their men.

MONGOLIA OFFICERS RELEASED ON BOND

[Associated Press by Federal Wireless]
SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 9.—Three officers of the Pacific Mail steamer Mongolia, on which 86 Chinese were found stowed away when the vessel called here on its last trans-Pacific voyage, October 23, were released on bonds yesterday pending a call to answer to the charge of connection with a conspiracy to smuggle the Chinese into the United States. The officers are Capt. Emory Rice, Chief Engineer Walter Paul and W. S. Scott, assistant chief engineer.

A grand jury investigation of the case was made on order of District Attorney Preston and during the inquiry the Mongolia's officers testified, and the action of yesterday was the result.

The Mongolia will sail for New York today under the flag of the Atlantic Transport Company, to which company several of the Pacific Mail boats were sold recently. The Mongolia's eventual destination is London.

After several hours discussion the federal reserve board referred to a committee Secretary McAdoo's suggestion for the establishment of joint agencies of federal reserve banks in South and Central American countries.
